AYER'S Cherry Pectoral
SAVED HIS LIFE
So says Mr. T. M. Reed, a highly-respected Merchant of Middletown, Ill., of a Young Man who was supposed to be in Consumption.

"One of my customers, some years ago, had a son who had all the symptoms of consumption. The usual medicines afforded him no relief, and he steadily failed until he was unable to leave his bed. His mother applied to me for some remedy and I recommended Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. The young man took it according to directions, and soon began to improve until he became well and strong."—T. M. REED, Middletown, Ill.

"Some time ago, I caught a severe cold, my throat and lungs were badly inflamed, and I had a terrible cough. It was supposed that I was a victim of consumption, and my friends had little hope of recovery. But I bought a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, took it, and was entirely cured. No doubt, it saved my life."—I. JONES, Emerts Cove, Tenn.

THREE BLACK BAGS.

As I often say to my wife, when she blames me for forgetting her little commissions, it's a queer thing, is the mind, and great is the force of habit. I never forget to do anything I'm in the habit of doing, but as Tilly usually attends to the shopping herself I'm not in the habit of calling at the butcher's or the grocer's on my way home from business, and, therefore—well, therefore, I don't call three times out of five that she tells me to.

Don't I catch it? No, not overmuch anyhow. For one thing, we haven't been married very long, and Tilly agrees that it's only reasonable I should have time to learn to be more careful, and for another, if it wasn't for the hold a habit has on me, I doubt whether we should be married yet, or at least we shouldn't be living in our own house, with the furniture all bought at a large discount for cash.

I am a clerk in the service of a firm of colliery and quarry owners at Lington, and every Saturday morning I go out to Westerbery, a village some 30 miles off among the moors, to pay the quarrymen there their wages.

It's an awkward sort of journey. I have to start by the first train in the morning, which leaves Lington at 6, change at Drask, our junction with the main line, leave the main line again at Thurley, some ten miles farther south, and do the rest of the distance in the brake van of a mineral train. The money—nearly £100, mostly in silver—I always carry in a little leather bag, one of those bags you see by scores every day, which may contain anything from a packet of sandwiches and a clean collar to a dynamite bomb, and it's my habit when in the train to put my bag in the rack facing me. I rarely keep it on the seat by my side, and I don't like to put it over my head.

If it has to go there because the opposite rack is full, I am always uneasy about it, fancying I shall forget it when I get out. I never have forgotten yet, but one Saturday in November, 1893, I did something which might have been worse. I took the wrong bag when I left the train at Thurley.

It happened in this way. On the Friday night I went out with Tilly to a party, which broke up so late that I had only just time to change my clothes and get a sort of apology for breakfast before catching my train. Consequently I slept all the way from Lington to Drask, and at Drask I stumbled, only half awake, into the first third class compartment I came to.

Three of the corner seats were occupied, and I took the fourth, though there was no room on the opposite rack for my bag. I couldn't put it on the man in the other corner had his legs up, and I didn't care to disturb him. I ought of course to have kept it on my knees, and on any other morning I dare say I should have done so, but it was rather heavy, and I was very sleepy, so I just slung it up over my head, settled myself down and dropped off again almost before the train was clear of the station.

I didn't wake until we stopped at Thurley, and even then I fancy I should have slept on if the two men at the far end of the compartment had not wanted to get out.

"What station is this?" I asked, sitting up and drawing my legs from across the door to let them pass. "Otterford, I suppose?"

"No, Thurley," said one, and up I jumped in a hurry, took my bag, as I thought, from the rack opposite me, and got down on to the platform just as the guard whistled the train away.

"You ran it a bit fine that time, mister," remarked the man who had saved me from being carried past my destination. "I wonder it that other chap meant going on? He was as fast asleep as you."

"Oh, he's all right," said his companion. "He's booked for London. I heard him say so when he got in. Good morning, governor."

"Good morning," I replied, and then, having thanked them for waking me, I made for the siding, where my mineral train was waiting for me.

"You look tired this morning, Mr. Corner," said the brakeman as soon as we started on our somewhat slow and wearisome journey.

"I look what I feel, Jim," said I. "And I am as sleepy as an owl. I never went to bed last night."

"Then lie down and have a sleep now, sir," suggested Jim. "Here's some sacks and a rug to cover you. If the jolting don't wake you, you may be sure I won't."

The good natured fellow kept his word, and as I am one of those happily constituted individuals who can sleep on or through anything I felt much refreshed when we arrived at the quarries after what Jim called "a roughish passage" over the uneven surface of the moorland line, which had been laid solely to serve the needs of our quarries and some neighboring iron mines.

After I had had a wash and done full justice to a second breakfast at the Miners' Arms, I felt ready to face my morning's work of making up the men's pay sheets. While I was doing that the bag, which I fondly imagine to be mine, lay on the table before me, nor did any doubt as to its identity trouble me until I had finished my calculations and was ready to embody the results of them in sundry little heaps of gold and silver.

Then, as I felt in my pocket for my keys, my memory began to entertain a vague suspicion that that bag was somehow unfamiliar to it. I am by no means an observent man, and as I couldn't have set down categorically the characteristics which distinguished my bag from others of like make and shape I felt rather than thought that the one in front of me did not possess those characteristics.

However, my key fitted the lock, and as I turned it my suspicions vanished, but only to be replaced a moment later by an astounding certainty.

Instead of resting upon the familiar brown paper packages of silver and little canvas bags of gold, my eyes were dazzled by a many colored iridescence which shone forth from the inside of that bag as soon as I opened it.

"Diamonds, by Jingo!" I cried as I started back amazed.

The bag fell over on its side, and half a dozen loose stones rolled out upon the table, where they lay sparkling gloriously in the wintry sunshine.

As soon as I recovered my self possession I picked thm up and put them back into the bag, the contents of which I then examined as well as I could without exposing them to the view of any one who might happen to look in at the office window, for, though I had no reason to suppose the quarrymen were not honest, I thought it best to keep my discovery to myself.

The bag, I guessed, was probably the property of a jeweler's traveler—a traveler in a large way of business, too, thought I, as I peered into it in the least exposed corner of the office and found it almost full of what, little as I knew about precious stones, I felt were valuable jewels.

But certainly travelers in jewelry did not usually pack, or rather omit to pack, their samples in such an utterly careless fashion? Rings, brooches, bracelets, loose stones, at least one necklace, a gold watch and chain, some bank notes and a considerable sum of sovereigns were all mixed up together in a chaotic confusion which seemed at least inconsistent with business habits.

I began to doubt whether it was even consistent with honest possession of, at all events, the contents of the bag on the part of my late fellow passenger—the man who was booked for London, and who had been asleep when I left the train at Thurley.

No doubt he was awake and also aware of his loss by this time. What a state of mind he must be in too! But just as I was trying to realize his state of mind a murmur of gruff voices and a shuffling of heavy feet in the yard outside reminded me that it was time to pay the men.

What had I better do? I wondered. Borrow what I needed from the notes and gold in the bag that was not mine or put the men off with fair words till Monday? They were a rough lot, though, and if I adopted the latter alternative there would probably be something very like a riot. It would be wiser, I thought, to pay them if I could get enough change to do it.

Hurriedly summoning the foreman and telling him that a mistake had been made in supplying me with money, I went down into the village and after some trouble succeeded in collecting enough silver and copper to serve my purpose.

Then, with the [illegible] sight between my legs, I paid [illegible] out of who were already grumbling at the delay, at the same time doing my best to rally them into better humor, for I felt absurdly nervous and was ready to credit the honest fellows with a capacity for crimes which were no doubt quite beyond the compass even of their imaginations.

As soon as I had finished my task I returned, per mineral train, to Thurley, and there I broke my journey. On calmly reviewing all the circumstances of the case in the seclusion of the brake van, I had decided that the police, rather than the railway authorities, ought to be the first informed of my mistake, and the inspector to whom I told my story agreed with me.

"I am very glad you came straight to me," said he, turning the contents of the bag out on the desk. "If you can hold your tongue for a week or two, it's just possible we may catch the gentleman who put this nice little lot together."

"You think they have been stolen, then?" I asked.

"Think!" he repeated, smiling at my simplicity. "I know, my boy. And when and where, too, though unfortunately not by whom. Run your eye over this."

"This" was a list of jewels and other valuables missing from Erlingthorpe, Lord Yerbury's place, near Drislingden, where, the inspector said, a well planned robbery had been carried out on the Thursday evening.

"You seemed to have nailed a lot," he went on, "but we may as well go through the articles seriatim."

We did so and found there was nothing missing except the money I had taken to pay the men.

"Our unknown friend hasn't even paid his traveling expenses out of the loose cash," commented the inspector, and then he suddenly changed his tone.

"Now, look here, young man," he went on, eying me keenly, "I'm not in charge of this case—yet—but if you'll do as I tell you I hope I may be in the course of a few days. There's a tidy reward offered for the recovery of the property, as you see. That, I take it, you've earned already, but are you game to help me to catch the man? There's a further reward for nabbing him, which, of course, I can't touch—officially—and don't particularly want. My aim is promotion. Do you understand?"

"I think so," said I, "and am willing to help you all I can."

"Good," said the inspector, resuming his jocular manner. "Could you identify your fellow sleeper, do you think?"

"I'm afraid not," I replied. "He had a beard, I know"—

"Which was very likely false," interrupted he, "but never mind. What we want to do is to get our friend to claim the property either in person or by deputy. He's sure to be a bit backward in coming forward, but he won't like to give up all that for the little bit of ready money there was in your bag, and if we have patience we may draw him."

"Well, what do you want me to do?" I asked.

"Nothing," he replied, "just literally nothing. Go home. Keep a still tongue in your head and a sharp eye on the agony columns of the London papers and wait till you hear from me. I'll take charge of these articles and give you a receipt for them, but don't be surprised if you see them still advertised as missing."

A few days later the inspector set his trap. It took the shape of an advertisement which appeared in the—but no, perhaps I had better not give the name of the paper; according to Inspector Bland, it is the favorite journal of the criminal classes—begging the gentleman with whom "G. C." inadvertently exchanged bags to communicate with G. C. at the address he would find in G. C.'s pocketbook.

Personally I didn't think our fish would be foolish enough to rise to this bait, but my friend, the inspector, was more hopeful.

"Luckily for us, Mr. Corner," said he, when I took advantage of my next visit to the quarries to call upon him, "there's always a sort of warp or twist in the mind of the habitual criminal which prevents him from believing in the honesty of other folks. Now, not a soul but you and I and the chief constable knows those jewels are as good as back on Lady Yerbury's dressing table, or wherever else she's in the habit of leaving 'em lying about. Therefore the hue and cry after them's not likely to die away yet awhile, and there'll be a genuine ring about it which should persuade our unknown friend that you've got 'em and mean to convert 'em to your own use, as we say in the profession; but, being an amateur, don't know how to go about turning 'em into more cash than the reward comes to, and that, consequently, you are anxious to come to terms with him. See?"

I saw, but I was not convinced. Events, however, proved that the inspector was right. For a month Lady Yerbury's diamonds were sought in vain, and for a month "G. C." continued to appeal to his late fellow traveler also in vain, but at the end of that time his patience was rewarded by the appearance of an advertisement, telling him if he really meant business to write to "B. H." at a given address.

The letter I wrote at the dictation of Inspector Bland was more cautious than incriminating, but as it produced a reply which the inspector deemed satisfactory it was followed by others less carefully worded, until I stood pledged to personally deliver, for a consideration of £2,000, the stolen jewels to one Benjamin Hurst, whom I was to meet at a public house in Chillingham.

Now, I don't pretend to be braver than the average man of peaceful and sedentary habits, and when I saw what sort of a house the Spotted Dog was I began to wish I had refused to have anything to do with Inspector Bland's scheme.

The little company of disrepufable looking loafers hanging about the bar eyed me curiously as I entered and in

"Mary, show the gentleman Mr. Hurst's room," said the landlord.

I found Mr. Hurst a decidedly surly rascal. He began by grumbling at the hardness of the bargain I was driving with him and swearing at his luck generally. Then, being perhaps emboldened by the concilintory manner I thought it prudent to adopt, he tried to make better terms, offering me first £500 less, and finally insisting that he ought at least to be allowed to deduct from my £2,000 the sum I had used to pay the men.

Inspector Bland had allowed me a quarter of an hour for negotiations. At the end of that time he proposed to make a raid upon the house.

"And mind," he had said in his jocular way, "we don't find the property still in your hands, Mr. Corner. It would be a pretty kettle of fish if we had to prosecute you for unlawful possession, wouldn't it?"

In accordance with these instructions, I haggled with Mr. Hurst a little while and then allowed him to have his way, whereupon he, having satisfied himself that the bag which I restored to him still contained his spoils, handed me £1,900 in what afterward turned out to be very creditable imitations of Bank of England notes.

"I suppose you don't want no receipt?" he growled.

"No, thank you," I said; "I think we may mutually dispense with that formality. Good morning."

I turned to leave the room as I spoke, but before I could unlock the door it was burst open from the outside, not, unfortunately for me, by the police, but by the man whom the landlord had called Bill, a powerful ruffian, who promptly knocked me down and knelt upon my chest.

"Quick, Ben, get out of this," he cried. "It's a plant. No, no. The window, you fool," he added as Mr. Hurst, bag in hand, made for the door. "The police are in the bar already."

As Mr. Hurst opened the window he cursed me with much volubility and bitterness, and as soon as he was outside on the leads he did worse.

"Stand clear, Bill," he cried, and his friend obeyed him. I scrambled to my feet, but immediately dropped again, with a bullet from Mr. Hurst's revolver in my shoulder.

I am not at all sorry that Mr. Hurst fired at me, as Inspector Bland says it was much easier to convict him of attempted murder than to prove he actually stole those jewels, and the inspector doubts, too, whether he would have got 15 years if merely charged with receiving them. But I do wish he hadn't hit me.

However, even the pain my wound still gives me is not without its compensation. It prevents me from feeling any twinges of conscience when I reflect that my furniture cost Mr. Hurst his liberty, for Lord Yerbury took it for granted that he was the thief and paid me the extra reward he had offered for his apprehension.

Inspector Bland won the promotion he coveted and is now stationed at Lington. His wedding present was characteristic. It was a black bag, with my initials on either side in white letters about 6 inches long.—All the Year Round.

SONOMA INDEX-TRIBUNE.

SONOMA, MARCH 9, 1895.

H. H. GRANICE - - - - - - - - - - - - EDITOR.

THE CANNERY PROPOSITION.

THE energetic editor of the SONOMA INDEX-TRIBUNE is endeavoring to get a fruit cannery established in that place. If the people had any get up and go about them they would take his advice and start one. Nothing is better for a place, for besides giving employment to a large number of hands every can of fruit sent out under a Sonoma Valley label is an Remember advertisement for the district. Where Watched Lush Not swu

-Healdsburg Enterprise.

Wit Editor Livernash of the Enterprise knows what he is talking about when he sides with this journal in its efforts to build and operate a fruit cannery in Sonoma. He has a practical illustration of the benefits to be derived from a fruit cannery right in his own town, where one has been operated for a number of years with profit to the stockholders and great advantage to the town in a business way. Last season over $70,000 was paid out by the Healdsburg cannery for labor alone. This money for the most part circulated in the business channels of the town. First it found its way into the hands of the working people and eventually passed into the pockets of the business men and property-owners of Healdsburg for fuel, light, clothing, rent, etc. The result was that there were few idle people in that place during the canning season, money was flush and business brisk. Again, another advantage was derived by the business people of that enterprising town. During the canning season teams upon teams laden with fruit for the cannery, that might have been hauled to some other shipping point had there been no cannery there, passed in and out of town day after day. This meant additional life to trade of all kinds. The farmer being attracted to Healdsburg by a home market for his fruit must of necessity do more or less trading there. His horses had to be fed or shod, his wagon fixed, his harness renewed or repaired, his inner man satisfied at one of the hotels or restaurants; mayhap he took an occasional "smile," and dropped into the printing office to "stop" the paper, but nine times out of ten before returning home his wagon was loaded down with the necessities and even the luxuries of life, purchased from the different stores in Healdsburg. Thus it was that all classes reaped a benefit from the cannery. Particularly was this so of the business men and property-owners of that town, because they killed two birds with one stone. Not only did they get most of the earnings of the employees of the cannery in supplying them with the necessaries of life, but also secured the trade of those farmers who came to town to dispose of the products of their orchards.

Now, what is good for Healdsburg ought to be good for Sonoma. That being so, it is in order to agitate the town's welfare first and graveyard improvements afterwards. That is to say, if we want to live. Otherwise, let us go off and die and leave the welfare of Sonoma to a future generation.

A Joke on the Editor.

At a recent entertainment at Oroville a number of the ladies took part, all being pronounced very clever for local talent. The young editor of the daily paper gave the play a glowing write-up, his best girl being in the cast. He declared in large head-lines that "they all filled their parts to perfection." Imagine the consternation of the editor and the indignation of the fair ladies when they read in the paper, "they all filled their pants to perfection!" With horse whips, tar and feathers and a host of horrors filling his imagination, the unfortunate scribe hastened to write a full, complete and abject apology.—Oroville Mercury.

THE Petaluma High School Board of Trustees has dismissed its Principal, Prof. C. C. Swafford, on the testimony of a suspended student. Evidently those Trustees believe the school ought to be run by the pupils and not by the Principal. To say the least Petaluma has a High School Board that has no more judgment than a donkey. Better resign, gentlemen, and give way to men of common sense and judgment.

FACT AND FANCY.

BY JEDWIN NEBWAME.

An advertisement appears on the back cover of an educational journal lying before me which I believe contains germs of untruth—not open, palpable untruth, hence more to be feared. The main untruth lies in the exclamatory sentence, which is surrounded by heavy black lines to catch the eye, "Come to the city to live!" The rest of the advertisement tells us that if young men and women will follow a certain system of book-keeping they will speedily obtain employment in the large mercantile firms of the city.

In the first place I do not believe it. The business schools are turning out a sufficient number of city-bred book-keepers and stenographers to more than fill the positions. The city is not a mecca for the honest unemployed. "Look before you leap." In the second place, is the city life more to be desired than the country life? This is a question that cannot be answered off-hand. The character and trend of one's mind alone can decide.

Perhaps the primal question for every one to decide is: How and where can I be most useful? If you can be more useful as a rich man, strive to be rich that you may realize your destiny, but not simply to be rich. To be a money bags is piggish, little and unworthy in a child of liberty. We are the heirs of a noble self-forgetfulness, and it is base, ignoble and treacherous to be selfish. So make up your mind to be useful whether your station be high or low, whether your purse be fat or lean, and you will have your reward. The being useful is the reward. Look at the great men of the past and present. Socrates, Plato and Aristotle; from these we get our philosophy. Homer, Dante and Shakespeare give us beauty in words; Newton finds the law that binds the universe; Bismark consolidates a people; Lincoln purges a nation of sin. A host of names comes to me, but these are sufficient to show that the great are great because they are useful. It is untrue to say they are useful because they are great. It is putting the cart before the horse.

The sentence, "come to the city to live" is evidently addressed to the country youth, and it suggests that we who inhabit the country do not live. This stimulates an unnatural dissatisfaction and is bad. Is the city book-keeper a better citizen than the country laborer—is he nearer his God? Where is vice and meanness rampant? Is the farmer to be despised because he does not understand the bunco man? No! The solid back bone of this nation is the country and were it not for the country the city would stiffle in its own filth. "God made the country, man made the city."

Theirs are narrow natures that do not find life in the country. There is freshness here. Nature bubbles over and speaks where brick and pavement both are dumb. The "dappled morn" awakes the country to find it sweet and fair.

Whilst the landscape round it measures,
Russet lawns and fallows gray,
Where the babbling flocks do stray,
Mountains on whose barren breast
The labouring c ouds do often rest;
Meadows trim and daisies pride,
Shallow brooks and rivers wide."

BOARD OF SUPERVISORS.

After the reading of the minutes, on motion of Supervisor Gray, the rules of the Board were suspended and a hearing given the parties interested in the matter of the board bridge on Dry Creek.

A large delegation of farmers from the Dry Creek region urged the Board to give them a change of location in the matter of the new bridge to be built over that creek. The old bridge was six miles north of Healdsburg and was washed away in the recent floods. The petitioners claim that if the new bridge is built two miles further down the stream it will accommodate a hundred families where the old bridge did not satisfy a dozen.

Warrants were ordered drawn for the following road district funds: Fulton, $398.10; Santa Rosa, $265; Russian River, $423.65; Healdsburg, $74.98; Skaggs Springs, $126.80; Knight's Valley, 209.30; Washington, $417.07; Mendocino, $407.66; Cloverdale, $361.38; Forestville, $121.80; Sebastopol, $265.81; Petaluma, $304.28; Marin, $333.55; Forestville, $287.

On motion of Supervisor Gray the Board adjourned to the call of the chair for the purpose of visiting the proposed bridge sites on Dry Creek.

"It is with pleasure I tell you that by one day's use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy I was relieved of a very severe cold. My head was completely stopped up and I could not sleep at night. I can recommend this remedy." A cold nearly always starts in the head and afterwards extends to the throat and lungs. By using this remedy freely as soon as the cold has been contracted it will cure the cold at once and prevent it from extending to the lungs.

A Cure Seldom Equalled in Medical History

All Sorts of Treatment Failed—Hood's Sarsaparilla Cured.

Mrs. Mary E. Freeby.

Long Beach, Cal.

Over all diseases caused by or arising from impure blood, Hood's Sarsaparilla seems to have almost magical control. Please read the following frank letter of Mr. Freeby, voluntarily endorsed by the Postmaster and Druggist of the town:

"C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.:

"My wife sprained her ankle ten years ago. It apparently got well, being a little larger than the other ankle. Three years ago last spring a sore broke out on her knee, then on her ankle, and a third one on her foot, which became

and the doctor of this place could not do anything to benefit my wife's case. We moved to Los Angeles by the advice of the doctor and had other physicians. I then took my wife to the hospital, and the surgeons scraped all the flesh around the sores. They almost healed up, but soon after, two little specks came, one on each side of the first sore. The doctors said they would not amount to anything, but in a few days they turned out to be more ulcers, and in a short time they had eaten into the original sore and made a big wound. The surgeon decided an Operation Must Be Performed.

My wife would not consent to this so we rested matters for a few days. Happening to meet another physician who said he could cure her limb in four weeks we consented to have him treat the case. After he had doctored five months there were seven ulcers in place of one when he commenced. He finally said my wife would never get well. I was about discouraged, and I went home and threw away all the salves and medicines and decided to have her try a bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla. Besides giving her this medicine we bandaged her foot in steeped leaves and roots and continued this treatment for five months. At the end of that time she had taken eleven bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla, the sores were all healed and

She is Perfectly Well.

I tell everyone what Hood's Sarsaparilla has done for my wife and advise all afflicted to try it. My wife is 52 years old and is in the best of health." JOSEPH C. FREEBY, Long Beach, California.

Sonoma is to have a bicycle club. On Sunday last twelve or fourteen wheelmen met in Union Hall and signed the roll of charter membership. There will be another meeting held on Sunday, March 17th, when the new club will be given a name and a constitution and by-laws adopted.

"Marillo," the well-known race horse, who was recently leased by J. B. Chase, was sent up from San Francisco last Monday evening and is now at Mr. Chase's Sonoma stables. This celebrated animal is one of the fastest running horse's that ever wore an American bridle.

A delegation of Druids from Sonoma Grove, No. 75, consisting of Julius Fochetti, A. G. Bulotti, S. Ciucci, H. Castagnasso and T. Oliveri paid a fraternal visit to Petaluma Grove, No. 38, last Wednesday evening, the occasion being a banquet given to the grand officers by the Petaluma Druids.

The following are the county salaries including deputies for Sonoma county as fixed by the new county government act: Sheriff, $6.200; Clerk, $5,000; Auditor, $1,000; Recorder, $3,900; Treasurer, $2,600; Tax Collector, $1,200; Assessor, $4,200; District Attorney, $2,400; School Superintendent, $2,000.

The contest over the will of the late W. W. Carriger it appears will never come to an end. The case was called in Judge Dougherty's court last Monday and for about the twentieth time has again been continued. It has now been continued to April 3rd. It is safe to assume, however, that the case will be called on that day to be again re set Evidently before the contest comes to an end the lawyers will take the property and there will be nothing left for the creditors or heirs.

Julius Fochetti, one of Sonoma's enterprising blacksmiths, erected last week in his shop on Spain street a newly patented shoeing machine by which a horse is suspended a foot or two from the ground, rendering the animal perfectly powerless, no matter how large he may be, and thus giving the shoer an opportunity to work without fear of being kicked or otherwise injured. The apparatus also protects the horse from hurting himself.

Schellville station on the line of the Southern Pacific, which has been in charge of station agent J. H. Humphreys the past five years, has been abandoned and is now only a whistling station. It is said that the Southern Pacific will also shut up their station in Glen Ellen. This will leave only one regular station in the valley, that of El Verano. Lack of business is said to be the cause, the Donahue company, which parallels the other road, getting most of the passenger and freight traffic in Sonoma Valley.

In the fall of 1893 a son of Mr. T. A. McFarland, a prominent merchant of Live Oak, Sutter county, Cal., was taken with a very heavy cold. The pains in his chest were so severe that he had spasms and was threatened with pneumonia. His father gave him several large doses of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy which broke up the cough and cured him. Mr. McFarland says whenever his children have croup he invariably gives them Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and it always cures them. He considers it the best cough remedy in the market. For sale by all dealers.

Charged With Battery.

Ed. Steiger, a well-known farmer and stock-raiser of this valley, residing at Agua Caliente, was arrested last Thursday by Deputy Sheriff Ohm on complaint of Mrs. Lachman, wife of Dave Lachman, who is a tenant of Steiger's at Embarcadero. The complainant says that Steiger became enraged at her in a dispute over the rent of the farm and struck and otherwise maltreated her. For this she had him arrested. The defendant was taken before Judge Cheney the same day and released on his own recognizance. The case will be ventilated before Judge Cheney and a jury at 1 o'clock next Tuesday, District Attorney Seawell prosecuting.

Query.

ED. INDEX-TRIBUNE:

Wednesday evening last I appeared before the Board of City Trustees and asked them what constituted a sidewalk in this city. They could not tell me. Still they passed an ordinance prohibiting bicycle riding on sidewalks. Now, Mr. Editor, will you through the columns of your paper inform me as well as other bicycle riders what legally constitutes a sidewalk under the city's ordinances on all of its streets and oblige

GEO. BREITENBACH.

Sonoma, March 7th, 1895.

[We might use the argument of some people we know of in this town and say "why, a sidewalk is a sidewalk," but that would not be answering the question. The word "sidewalk" is of pure American ecinage and means a walk for foot passengers by the side of a street or road. Webster and Worcester being the accepted authorities of this definition we really see no necessity of a city ordinance defining what a sidewalk is. "Don't look to de right, don't look to de left, but keep in de middle ob de road," Geowrge, and you will steer clear of Sonoma's new jail, whose doors are now yawning for offending bicycle riders.]—ED. INDEX-TRIBUNE.]

A Mind Reader to Solve The County Treasury Robbery.

A dispatch from Santa Rosa says: "Prof. Tyndall, the mind-reader, has been here the past few days and for some time has had the matter of the County Treasury robbery committed here in December under his investigation. He has interviewed ex-County Treasurer Stofen and County Treasurer Woodward and gone carefully over every detail in the office. Tyndall was questioned about the matter, but would say nothing further than that he had formed impressions. Those impressions he said he was not yet ready to make public.

Revival Services.

The revival services at the M. E. Church have been fairly well attended the past week. The Rev. F. R. Walton of Occidental preached every night. There will be no meeting to-night. The Rev. W. S. Matthews, D. D., of San Francisco will preach twice to-morrow. The meetings will be continued the coming week. A hearty invitation is extended to all Christian people to come and help in this work, and friends and neighbors of the church and its pastor are earnestly requested to come and listen to the word of Eternal Life.

More Small Farms.

Jas. McMackin of Schellville, one of Sonoma Valley's most respected and wealthy farmers, is contemplating cutting up five or six hundred acres of land on the west side of Sonoma creek opposite his home place into ten, twenty and forty acre tracts, which he will put upon the market. The land embraced in the tract is a sandy loam and is the richest agricultural land in Sonoma county. It is admirably adapted for the small farmer.

Tree Planting.

Large numbers of fruit trees are being set out in Sonoma Valley this season. Mr. O. Gericke, whose farm is located in the mountains four miles north of town, has planted a new prune orchard of 2,500 trees. The soil and location selected by Mr. Gericke are admirably adapted for the cultivation of the prune.

CITY TRUSTEES.

Seventy-five Dollars Appropriated for the Improvement of Streets—Other Matters.

The Board of City Trustees met in regular monthly session last Monday evening, a full Board being present.

The minutes of the last regular and two special meetings were read and approved.

Upon the recommendation of the Volunteer Fire Company Carl Haderman was appointed cleaner of the fire apparatus at a compensation of $2.50 a month.

It was moved by Trustee Poppe and seconded by Trustee Schocken that the sum of $75 be appropriated for the grading of Fourth-street West, one-half of Germany street, Second-street East, Patten street and Spain street.

Trustee Bulotti made a motion, which received a second from Trustee Hartin, that $50 be appropriated for the improvement of the new cemetery road.

On motion of Trustee Hartin $100 was appropriated for one hundred yards of gravel.

It was moved by Trustee Bulotti that the Board reconsider the matter of purchasing a piece of land from Mr. C. Aguillon for the sum of $125 for the purpose of lowering the grade on the road leading to Mountain Cemetery. The motion was seconded by Trustee Hartin. The proposition to pay Mr. Aguillon the money now and receive a deed was put to a vote which resulted as follows: Aye—Bulotti and Hartin. No—Schocken and Poppe. The President decided in favor of the motion.

The motion not having received the necessary two-thirds vote was lost.

The following resolution was introduced by Trustee Poppe:

Whereas, The resolution passed at the special meeting of the Trustees held February 16th, introduced by Trustee Bulotti in the following words, to wit: "I move that we buy the land from Mr. Aguillon," is indefinite and not expressing the full intent of this Board. Therefore, be it resolved that whenever Camill Aguillon and wife shall execute and deliver a good and sufficient deed to the City of Sonoma for a certain strip of land not less than thirty feet wide, inclusive of a walled-in ditch or watercourse and running through lot 329 in Sonoma from First-street West in an easterly direction to a small bridge or culvert, thence in a straight line to the gate of Mountain Cemetery, said strip of land to be properly surveyed and correctly described in said deed, then the President of this Board and the City Clerk shall draw a warrant on the City Treasurer in favor of Camille Aguillon for the sum of $125, the purchase price of said land agreed upon.

The resolution having been seconded by Trustee Schocken was defeated by the following vote: Aye—Poppe and Schocken. No—Bulotti, Hartin and President Seipp.

Ordinance No. 47 was read the second time and passed by the unanimous vote of the Board and the approval of the President.

It was moved by Trustee Schocken that the water rate for the twelve months from July 1st, 1895, to July 1st, 1896, be declared to remain the same as the preceding year and the Clerk was instructed to draw an ordinance to that effect.

Upon motion of Trustee Poppe a permit was granted to George H. H. Cornelius to use his slaughter house situated within the city limits for one month, upon the conditions that he will keep it clean and that no complaints shall be made by the neighbors.

The following bills were allowed and ordered paid: J. E. Robin, salary and jail supplies, $16.75; J. G. Marcy, jail supplies, $3.50; H. H. Granice, printing, $5.50; G. Di Grazia, plaza work (assigned claim) $7.50; F. W. Bean, street work, $1.00; B. P. Norris, carpenters work, $5.60; G. H. Hotz, jail supplies, $4.50; J. Revie, hauling gravel, $9.00; P. Baccala, street work, $17.00.

The Bicycle Ordinance.

The bicycle ordinance, which prohibits the riding of bicycles on sidewalks inside the city limits, was finally passed by the City Trustees last Wednesday evening and is now in force. The ordinance is published in another column and should be carefully read by every wheelman. Besides making it a misdemeanor for bicycle riders to ride on or over the sidewalks of the town it also makes it compulsory on every wheelmen to have a bell or other contrivance attached to the vehicle or machine which they must sound or ring whenever they are approaching a horseman or team, in order to give timely warning of their approach.

Visitors to Sonoma on business or pleasure will find the Sonoma House as conducted by Chas. Stein the hotel of Sonoma. *

The social hop to be given by A. A. Enke and M. Zoberbier next Friday evening promises to be well attended and a good social time is anticipated.

Mr. F. W. Wade is lying very ill with liver complaint at his residence in the eastern suburbs of town. He is being attended to by Dr. Davis.

Mr. and Mrs. Miller came up from San Francisco last Saturday and spent several days at their country home, "Orange Lawn," near this place.

Attorney J. S. Enos of San Francisco has been lying very ill the past few weeks at the residence of Mrs. R. J. Snyder near this place. Dr. Walliser, the attending physician reports his patient as greatly improved the past few days.

John B. Skinner, Jr., the well-known and popular young druggist of San Francisco, spent last Friday and Saturday with his father Mr. John Skinner of this place.

A. Gericke and his daughter, Miss Gussie, returned to their home in Tomales, Marin county, last Monday after a two week's visit with Mr. and Mrs. O. Gericke on their farm near this place.

Mrs. B. F. Campbell underwent a very dangerous surgical operation in San Francisco last Saturday. The well-known specialist of that city, Dr. E. M. Wemple, who performed the operation, that of removing an ovarian tumor, is hopeful of Mrs. Campbell's recovery and complete restoration to health. This will be good news to the lady's many friends in this valley.

The barn warming held in Mr. G. W. Beatty's new barn at Glen Ellen on Friday evening of last week was a decided social success. About twenty-five couple were present who "tripped the light fantastic" to the sweet music of Corbett's band of Santa Rosa. At midnight an excellent supper was served by Mr. John Hendley of the Glen Ellen Hotel, after which dancing was resumed and continued until early in the morning. Many thanks are due to Mr. and Mrs. Beatty.

On Saturday evening last a very enjoyable surprise party was tendered to Mr. and Miss Matheson at their home in Glen Ellen, the occasion being the anniversary of the birth of Mr. Matheson. Quite a number of young people assembled and as is usual at a surprise party mirth and merriment reigned supreme throughout the evening. Dancing, singing and the playing of games were indulged in, which caused the hours to pass rapidly by and at a late hour a sumptuous repast was partaken of which added more vigor to the evening's festivities. At an early hour in the morning the guests bid adieu and departed for their homes.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Haraszthy were presented with a baby girl one day this week.

Carl Ludeman, formerly of this place, has purchased a newspaper route in San Francisco.

Use soapy water when making starch. The clothes will have a glossier appearance and the irons will be less like to stick.

Preparations are being made for a high-class musical and literary entertainment to be given by the Sonoma Valley Union High School for the benefit of the library fund.

Here is a simple, but efficacious remedy for burns. Grate or scrape a raw potato and cover the burned part with it. As soon as it becomes hot renew it. Continue to renew at intervals until relieved.

In making fruit pies fasten a narrow band of muslin around, covering the edge of the pies. When they are baked remove the muslin. This keeps in the juice and prevents the untidy look which fruit pies generally have.

Soft silks are to be in favor for spring and summer wear, but just at present all the heavier varieties, such as brocades, stiff satins and glace silks are most worn. The new India silks are brocaded in small patterns and plain silks woven so thin that they are almost like gauze are one of the novelties which can be accordion plaited as effectively as chiffon.

How to Cure Rheumatism.

ARAGO, Coos Co., OREGON, Nov. 10, 1893.—I wish to inform you of the great good Chamberlain's Pain Balm has done my wife. She has been troubled with rheumatism of the arms and hands for six months and has tried many remedies prescribed for that complaint, but found no relief until she used this Pain Balm; one bottle of which has completely cured her. I take pleasure in recommending it for that trouble. Yours truly, C. A. BULLORD. 50 cent and $1.00 bottles for sale by all dealers.

SONOMA INDEX - TRIBUNE.

SONOMA, SATURDAY, MARCH 9, 1895.

CHOLLY AGITATED.

He Thinks the Time Has Come For His Crowd to Organize Against Foreigners.

Bravo, little count! Milles felicitations on your pluck and perseverance!

It isn't every young Frenchman who can come to America to complete his education and pick up a girl like Anna Gould and $15,000,000 into the bargain.

Count Castellane isn't as good looking as Harry Woodruff, as rich as Willie Harriman or as noble as Prince Battenburg, yet he has got what all those chappies strove for with might and main.

If the mind can be permitted to wander through the possibilities created by such an engagement, it will revert first to the high born father and mother of the young adventurer, the Marquis and Marquise de Castellane, living perhaps on air, as only French people can, yet still maintaining the stately dignity of their old French chateaux.

Imagine the cable received from their adored son gone to the uttermost parts of the world to search for the wherewithal:

"J'ai gagne tout, belle, riche et generouse"—I have won all, lovely, rich and willing to give up!

Already the news is known in Paris, France and all over Europe.

Already other frugal parents are bidding other adventurous sons goodby and good speed on their departure for New York in quest of other heiresses.

We will soon be inundated by other "students" of American institutions, who will hope to take something more tangible than "impressions" back with them.

I never read of an engagement like this without considering the uproar into which it throws Europe.

I have already made reference to the "Mothers' Mutual American Heiress Emigrant society," formed in Germany by noble but impoverished women for the purpose of raising funds with which to ship their sons to America.

The success of Count Castellane will be certain to cause such societies to spring up all over Europe.

By Jove, the government ought to interfere! This is contract labor if ever there was such a thing, and our heiresses are equally responsible under the law!

They bring these fellows out here, they induce them to come with promises of employment, and, by gad! old chappies, I don't think it's fair to us at all.

What show have we plain "misters" got?

We may be as lovely as Harry Woodruff and belong to as many clubs as Bill Harriman, yet we are not the kind of fellows these girls want to marry.

It's the handle to the name, the dreary old tumble down castle, that catch the rich girl's fancy, and we have neither of those commodities.

Upon my word, it makes my heart sick, and persuades one to go out and get lost in the blizzard, to think that a little frog eating Frenchman can blow into New York and in a month's time accumulate $15,000,000, with a wedding present of $2,000,000 thrown in.

If the law won't help us, I say that we dudes ought to organize into something like an old time Know Nothing association and hamstring every decent looking foreigner that arrives on these shores and cannot prove that he isn't after an American heiress.

What do you say, Brock Cutting, Ham Carey and Jim Farley, are yous wid me or agin me?—Cholly Knickerbocker in New York Recorder.

A FRENCH KLEPTOMANIAC.

How He Was Nipped and the Famous Goethe Medallion Recovered.

The superb medallion of Goethe by the famous sculptor, David of Angers, was recently missed from the Paris Louvre. Watch was set upon the other art treasures in the room in which it had been shown. At length an old man, respectably dressed, was discovered trying to open a case by unscrewing the hinges. On being arrested he declared that he was tightening the screws of the hinges, not taking them out. He was detained in custody, and a search was made of his rooms. Here was found the missing medallion, together with a large number of other art treasures and bits of bric-a-brac. There were also tools not unlike a housebreaker's.

The kleptomaniac, who is a bachelor of 62, has been ascertained to be a man of considerable fortune, who spent large sums in artistic salesrooms. It is proposed by the magistrate to keep him in custody for a few days and then release him, his friends depositing 10,000 francs as security for his good behavior.—Paris Letter.

A Shocking Hotel.

A hotel in Chicago is so heavily charged with electricity that the guests cannot move around without getting a shock which is often painful. It is so bad that when one walks across the room a spark will leap over a space of two inches. The guests have had some funny experiences. One man came near getting a gash cut in his face when he went to get shaved, because he was so startled by a spark from the razor. Then another man thought he had stepped on needles when he got into a bathtub. This peculiar condition of the building puzzles the electricians, and some think the whole house will have to be overhauled and revised.—Chicago Correspondent.

The Name Disgraced.

In The Journal Officiel appears a notice to the effect that another Captain Dreyfus of the artillery and of the staff is desirous of changing his name to that of Deslaurens. This officer was born at Nancy in 1855 and is stationed at Perpignan. There are now 38 officers of the name of Dreyfus in the army list. Seven are in the artillery, 12 in the infantry, one is in the engineers and eight in the territorial army.

Castoria.

"Castoria is an excellent medicine for children. Mothers have repeatedly told me of its good effect upon their children."

DR. G. C. OSGOOD, Lowell, Mass.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."

DR. J. F. KINCHELOE, Conway, Ark.

Castoria.

"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me."

H. A. ARCHER, M. D., 111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Our physicians in the children's department have spoken highly of their experience in their outside practice with Castoria, and although we only have among our medical supplies what is known as regular products, yet we are free to confess that the merits of Castoria has won us to look with favor upon it."

THE FUTURE OF EUROPE.

Le Bon, the French Historian, Predicts an Oriental Influx.

The French historian Le Bon in a recent article predicts that Europe will become the seat for despotism and later for barbarism and incur the same fate as the Byzantine and the Persian empires. Next the Slavs will destroy the old culture, and then Europe will be overrun with the orientals, particularly the Chinese and the Hindoos.

According to Professor Le Bon's views, a general European war will be succeeded by terrible economic conditions. The orient is already commencing to be the producer for Europe instead of being the consumer, and Europe, in spite of its tariff protection, will find it impossible to check the flood. India is now exporting its produce, which, in spite of transportation expenses, is sold at a lower figure than the European, and India, provided with machinery, is now competing with Europe in the manufacturing market. China, when its war with Japan is over, will follow India's example.

When India and China, with their enormous deposits of coal, have a mass of factories in operation, they will overwhelm the European markets with their products and place the European workman in the position where he must either starve to death from lack of work or starve on absolutely insufficient wages. The oriental workman will not, as experience has shown, desert their cheap food—tea and rice—for our more expensive food or European luxuries.

Professor Le Bon's views, says Le Temps, may be drawn in dark colors, but every one familiar with political economy must to a certain extent indorse them. The European markets in certain of their branches are now and have for some time felt the killing influence of economical competition from the oriental countries, and when such conditions exist now what will they be when these countries will be equipped with European machinery and producing its articles with the same facility as is now done in Europe? It may not come in our time, but a future generation will have a difficult problem to solve.

TELEGRAPHIC TYPEWRITER.

Novel Method of News Distribution Followed In Paris.

L'Agence Havas, the great distributer of news at Paris, has introduced recently a system of telegraphic typewriters which for rapid spreading of information excels anything known. The machine was invented as well as perfected by an American, Mr. Wright, and, after some adaptation necessary for the peculiar purpose it had to serve, presents now the perfection of an apparatus for the news bureau. A typewriter in the central station works the machine, and all the subscribers receive the identical information in less than one-third the time required by ordinary telegraphic transmission. Absolute accuracy is guaranteed, the operator sees what he is writing, and mutilation or dropping of words is impossible.

The system of news distribution is very complicated, but great pains have been taken to secure it against any likely interruption of the service. All the wiring is through underground cables, one cable being allowed for a group of 15 subscribers, but there are 20 wires in each cable, allowing a reserve of five wires for each circuit. The machine is quite different from the old American tickers, in that the paper used is not a strip three-quarters of an inch wide, but a roll of paper 6½ inches in width. The principle is that of a typewriter, each key of which is connected with a special communicator, allowing an electric current to pass through the line, upon which are disposed a given number of receivers with typewriting attachments, but without any clockwork. A type reel guided by the current from the central station prints upon a roll of paper as in a typewriter. The commutator mentioned above is set going by a small electric motor receiving its energy from a battery of 60 Tudor accumulators.—Nature.

An Interesting Insurance Question,

William Bailey, who had been buying horses and shipping them south, and who accidentally shot himself through the right foot two weeks ago, has died of his injuries. Bailey came here from Fort Scott. Shortly after the first of the year he took out two accident insurance policies, one in the Fidelity and Casualty company for $5,000 and the other in the Standard company for a like amount. The latter company claims exemption under a clause which releases it if the insured is injured while in the act of violating a state law. Local representatives of the company claim that as Bailey was shot by the accidental discharge of a revolver in his pocket he was carrying a concealed weapon, and thereby violating the state law.—Atchison (Kan.) Dispatch.

Indiana's Librarian.

Mrs. Emma L. Davidson of Peru has been elected state librarian for Indiana. Miss Nancy Baker of Indianapolis was a close competitor, receiving in the joint Republican caucus 46 of 101 votes. Mrs. Davidson has appointed Miss Fitzgerald of Madison and Miss Lillian Welton of Vincennes as her assistants.

An Odd Death Notice.

The following death announcement appeared the other day in the Frankische Tagespost, Nuremberg: "The life principle of our dear wife and mother ended today in the fifty-fifth year of its existence. The material will be given back to earth in the graveyard on Saturday."

Longevity In England.

No fewer than 196 persons were reported during 1894 in the column of death notices in the London Times as being 90 or over. Their aggregate age was 18,203 years; 89 were men who lived jointly 8,226 years, and 107 were women whose ages amounted to 9,977 years.

It combines simplicity with durability, speed, ease of operation, wears longer without cost of repairs than any other machine. Has no ink ribbon to bother the operator. It is neat, substantial, nickel-plated, perfect, and adapted to all kinds of type writing. Like a printing press, it produces sharp, clean, ligible manuscripts. Two or ten copies can be made at one writing. Any intelligent person can become an operator in two days. We offer $1,000 to any operator who can equal the work of the DOUBLE CASE ODELL.
